Useful information and links:

1. Labour Market Information

Labour Market Information (LMI) is a useful tool to help research future jobs in the local area, understand the skills needed for certain roles and the demand for future employment. It can help predict if the job your child wants will have vacancies/still be needed by the time your child enters the workforce. National Careers Service (local) and Labour Market Information London LEP are useful websites for finding out local Labour Market Information.

2. Apprenticeships

Apprenticeships are another good option for some students. An apprenticeship is a real job where you learn, gain experience and get paid. You're an employee with a contract of employment and holiday leave. They also get hands-on training and also the chance to put skills into practice. They also get time-off work to study for new qualifications or complete ones in English/Maths and ICT. For more information on apprenticeships visit here
